Work On New Swimming Pool Being Rapidly Completed

During the past week good progress has been made with the construction of the new swimming pool by the members of the board of trade and others interested.

The municipal equipment in one day dug the pit 75 feet by 50 feet. This machinery is capable of moving about 5 cubic yards of dirt at a time and had interested spectators all the time it was in operation. A huge mound of earth now lies to the west of the pit and another smaller mound to the east. When the hole is completed this earth will be moved back to fill in what is left of the hole and then spread around it raising the level of the ground a couple of feet or so.

In the evenings and all day Dominion Day volunteer workers tilled level off the inside of the pit and dug trenches for the cement walls. Never before did these fellows work so hard and long on Dominion Day. By night fall they had everything ready for the crib to be put in. Monday night saw an army of national guards on hand ready to take boards on the forms under the supervision of Carpenter Mathewson and Al Wilson.

As soon as these forms are in place cement will be poured. It is easy to see that this swimming pool is finished. Gleichen will have resort that all will be proud of.

THE OTTAWA LETTER

BY F. W. GERSHAW, M.P.

This week amendments to the criminal code were before the house. Section 384 reads: "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for life for any term not less than three years who steals

(a) post letter bag; (b) a post letter from a post letter bag or from any post office or from any officer or person employed in any business of the post office of Canada or the mail; C and D refer to the stealing of chattels or money from a post letter.

If a person is found to be guilty under this section he may be sentenced for life but the minimum is a three year sentence. It was found that convictions could not be obtained. The object of the amendment was to have the term left to the discretion of the magistrate. It was also felt that long imprisonment was too severe a punishment and that it should not be possible for magistrates to give a life sentence. However, the only change that was made was to remove the minimum so that a shorter term of imprisonment could be handed out. It was found in many cases that juries would not bring in a verdict of guilty because they felt that the minimum sentence was altogether too severe.

During the discussion many interesting cases were brought to the attention of the house. One lawyer, who is practicing in Toronto, told of the harsh decisions that a certain judge had made. He said that this judge was unduly severe and handed out five and seven years sentences with a callousness that was appalling. In due season, he said, the juries refused to risk what he might do to a poor fellow in the dock. This lawyer said he saw juries bring in verdicts of not guilty when the prisoner was obviously guilty. This was the reason the minister had for amending the code.

During the discussion it was brought out that the whole criminal code should be revised, simplified and consolidated in such a way that it would be easily understood by average person.

People throughout Canada are most interested in the Family Allowance Measure. The bill will be passed during this session. It is felt that it would not be right to have the payments made before an election was held. For this reason payments will not be started until the first of July, 1945. The object of the bill is to improve conditions in the homes throughout Canada and to give more nearly equal opportunities to all children.

Pharmacy Safe Robbed

One night last week safe crackers broke into the post office and the Gleichen Pharmacy. At the pharmacy it is not known just how they got in. An attempt had been made to raise a rear window, falling they got in some other way presumably by the front door for a few, since the other two doors are bolted.

They evidently knew a lot about safes. In their attempt to open the safe they knocked loose the dial and handle and falling to open it this way proceeded to get into it from the rear. In doing this they showed they knew just how this safe was constructed. Taking a cold chisel they cut the steel across the safe near the top, then down for a foot or so then across the other side then bent the steel, breaking it to one side. Next they climbed through the cement to the interior where they were able to get the safe open. They were after they got away with a small amount of cash and about $600 in bonds but left behind a number of clues.

A post office attempt had been made to raise a rear window and failing a knife was used to cut a hole in the door, in this way the robbers were able to release the latch to gain admittance. Here again they displayed their knowledge of safes. No attempt had been made to open the vault door for it is a massive affair beyond that was another door after that there was still a safe to open if they wanted to get anything. Nothing was found to be missing by Postmaster Bates.

COUNTRY STORES DOING BEST BUSINESS IN MANY YEARS

Canada's country storekeeper is not only doing the best business in years, but has forged far ahead of all other classes of merchants since the war began. Country general stores have improved their sales by approximately 60 per cent over 1929, according to official estimates.

Sales volume for 1943 as compared with 1942 show these changes in various categories:

Department stores and mail order houses 1.9; chain stores 2.3; independents (exclusive of country general stores) 5.8; country general stores 9.5.

Retail sales show the largest increases in the provinces which have relatively more general stores than others, the Maritimes reporting a rise of 9.3 per cent over 1942, and the prairie provinces an increase of 8.5 per cent.

The brisk increase in country sales is attributed to several factors. The rural merchant finds his supply problem simplified by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's policy of equitable distribution which assures him a fair share of available goods.

Officials of the retail administration and other administrations of the board have leaned over backward in their efforts to meet the trader's demand with fairness, while the wholesale administration has been interested in doing everything possible to assist distribution through wholesalers to the independent trade.

Various other circumstances have helped the country storekeeper to reach his present enviable position. Restrictions on automobile travel discourage rural residents from shopping in the city. Farmers and their families short-handed and working long hours find it easier to trade at the nearest store. Many country merchants have been able to supply customers with needed goods after city stores have exhausted their stocks, and have added new lines to their already varied assortments. Shortage of sales staff in larger establishments has worked in favor of the friendly, independent merchant who takes time to answer his customers' questions, helps them with their ration coupons and extends courteous small courtesies.

If no price control existed, retailers would be compelled to gamble very heavily in obtaining merchandise as every shopkeeper would buy

THE TOOLS FOR THE JOB

When the Allies launch their real big drive for the liberation of Europe they will need quantities of shells, guns and equipment to back up the attack. In ordnance, ammunition and vehicle depots in Britain there are huge stores of equipment.

Fell over the country thus giving added moisture to the growing crops. During a slight shower late Sunday afternoon some hail fell but not enough to do any damage. Despite plenty of moisture some farmers are continuing to irrigate claiming one cannot get to much moisture in the soil, furthermore if rain should fail to come later and the shortage of help it is just as well to have plenty of moisture in the ground.

ONE MAN'S INCOME IS ANOTHER MAN'S OUTGO...

If rising prices and costs were allowed to keep pushing each other up, inflation would be unavoidable. That's what inflation is—a panic rise in prices—with money losing its value and confusion everywhere. To prevent inflation, a ceiling has been set on prices and profits—wages and salaries have been controlled.

If one person demands higher prices—another higher profits—another a higher wage or salary—soon everybody would be making the same demands—demands on everyone else.

Then costs of production could not be controlled.

The ceiling could no longer be held.

Living costs would go up—

WITH THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER MEN OVERSEAS

By R. P. MacLean
OVERSEAS WITH CANADIAN BOMBER GROUP

We talked to several of the ground crew and asked them about the cold. They said: "Oh, you get used to it."

We had a detailed inspection of one of the new Halifaxes. The aircraft was there to explain the thousand and one gadgets to us. It was an interesting hour.

We had lunch there and like all meals at service stations, it was a good one. But it was cold, I mean the temperature of the dining room and not the meal. Thanks, I had no desire to live in that temperature.

Later we inspected the station and on one occasion I was burned up. The sergeant mess a score of shapes were huddled around two little stoves. As you walked across the room your breath almost solidified in the air it was so cold. And yet we opened one door and the room was so hot we could hardly breathe. It was here that the men's flying suits were being dried out. Great care is taken to see that the room is dry by the men when they start on a trip are thoroughly dry. That is understandable but, I wonder, why could not just the same principle be used to raise the temperature of the mess room at least above freezing point. It seems to me that something should be done.

Later in the afternoon we left this base and went to a place where the crews have to take over. The drive was again through attractive English countryside—the type of country I had always pictured as "English."

Group Headquarters is situated on an old estate. We were told that the estate is enclosed by a brick wall thirty miles long. That may or may not be but certainly we saw about eight miles of it!

It seems that the chippie who owns the estate was far from happy about it being taken over by the services. In fact he refused to get out and was inclined to be a bit nasty. His life in a house on the estate and is so happy about the whole thing that he objects to the W.D.'s strolling down to his duck pond to watch the ducks swim around. Or so they told us.

There and a most interesting hour in the group control room where the whole plan of the coming raid on Stuttgart was given to us in detail. Then back through the early evening darkness to our base station for another evening with the chaps who were visiting Germany again that night.

None of our party had any desire to see the men return from their trip the next morning and so we were told that off. We left the station as the planes were circling the field preparing to land. We, each of us, were wondering as we drove away how many would be missing when the final take was made an hour or so later but we were subsequently advised that "all our friends returned safely."

The record of the Canadian Bomber Group is impressive. During 1943 the group dropped over 15,000 tons of bombs on enemy targets, taking part in almost all major attacks during the year. In the Battle of Berlin which started as such on November 18th, 1943, Canadian bombers have taken part in every major assault on that city.

This important phase of the war which is causing such havoc has, however, been costly. Canadians have lost 64 bombers which have meant a loss of 488 personnel, killed, missing or prisoners of war.

Considered from any angle the contribution of Canadian Group is great. At the present time one in every six bombers in major night attacks against the enemy is Canadian. It is expected that in the near future this creditable showing will become even greater with one in every five being Canadian. To this must be added, of course, the great number of Canadian personnel in the RAF and the RCAF who serve with the RAF bomber groups based in Britain. In addition one of the top Pathfinder squadrons serving with the RAF group is Canadian.

Canadians serving on bombers are either attached to the RAF or the RCAF. The former are located at practically every RAF bomber station in Britain and serve on mixed crews, often composed of Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, Rhodesians, and of course, English. Some crews are almost wholly composed of Canadians while others may have only one Canadian as an overseas all-English crew. Those who serve with RCAF bomber squadrons serve with all-Canadian

Drought Resistance

Despite the favourable meteorological conditions prevailing in the Prairie Provinces during recent years, we must not forget that drought is still the greatest hazard in the production of crops and livestock. There is no evidence that the ancient or seasonal distribution of rainfall can be influenced by man, in spite of claims sometimes made by enthusiastic tree planters. Therefore, all we can do is to make better use of the rainfall we get. Broadly speaking, this is done in three ways.

The first involves water-saving devices, such as dams and dugouts for farmstead water supplies and even for small scale irrigation. The second involves tillage practices which prevent or reduce runoff and conserve soil moisture.

The third method is concerned with the use of drought resistant varieties or crops. A drought resistant variety is one which makes efficient use of a limited supply of moisture. For example, created wheat grass is drought resistant; timothy is not. Similar, though smaller, differences may be observed between different varieties of wheat.

On the open plains, where moisture is scarce, the drought resistant varieties yield more than others; but the differences are less pronounced than this between created wheat grass and timothy. Writers and speakers who give water to the drought problem will be solved by resistant varieties as the real problem is to get the soil to hold the water.

SHUR-GAIN NEWS OF THE WEEK

INCREASE EGG PRODUCTION

One of the surest methods of increasing egg production is to take every precaution with the health of each bird. One of these precautions is to be sure you have plenty of water for your flock at this time of year, and it will be very helpful in keeping up fall production.

Water is cheap, and most people are of it for vigorous health. Water softens the feed in their crops, aids in carrying feed through the digestive canal, and dilutes the various digestive juices. Failure to give water to the hen, upsets its normal laying function, which in turn throws off her production.

A hen producing from 100 to 150 eggs will consume about twenty additional gallons of water. It is known that a bird that lacks water than any other bird will lay fewer eggs. Give your hen plenty of clean, fresh water, and watch EGG PRODUCTION INCREASE.

Naturally with plenty of fresh water, five year SHUR-GAIN EGGS—MATER LAYING CONCENTRATE—which has been known to more than DOUBLE egg production in one year, and bring your hens lay all winter.

SHUR-GAIN EGGMARER LAYING CONCENTRATE contains egg making material. It's low in cost and easy to mix with your own feed. STAYS IN THE WATER. PROFIT! NOW—FOR PROFIT!

Here is a tough nut for the consumer branch. For many weeks there has been no end of discussion on the question of who should get the sugar coupons (rationing) of the school teacher who is boarding in the community, shortly leaving for holidays. The creator at Ottawa says she has no authority to rule one way or the other. If the teacher is leaving her boarding house to go home for the summer she should make arrangements to let her land lady have none of her rationing coupons. Otherwise she would not be entitled to any of the preserves which would undoubtedly be served her next winter. There is certainly a fair solution to the problem and it is up to the individual concerned to find it.

Canada's pension bill in respect to this war will be enormous. The minister of pensions said in the house of commons that pensions costing $6,975,000 a year were being paid to 1916 veterans of the present war at April 30. A federal department of Veterans' Affairs is being set up.

Signs of inflation developed in 1943 before wage and price control was introduced. In the six months preceding prices were rising three times as fast as in the earlier part of the war. This is a significant fact many have not known. If the cost of living has been allowed to rise unchecked living standards would certainly have been progressively reduced. You know, industry and agriculture have undergone tremendous changes in the war years. Food production skyrocketed for 40 to 50 percent. About a million persons have been added to the labor force. More than 750,000 went into the armed forces. War expenditures last year purchased more goods and services than Canada produced altogether in 1939.

The men and women returning from war will bring back a great resurgence of things spiritual, which should stand Canada in good stead at a critical time. It is so implied in many of the stories coming from behind the front. Here, as an example is a little paragraph from a story concerning the adventure of a famous Canadian destroyer, which took part in the invasion. "There were shell splashes in our vicinity; we saw craft hit, saw them burning, saw them sink and the men in it."

but you understood later the fleeting look that passed over men's faces as the ship's radio tuned to invasion news, suddenly interrupted its program to say: "And now let us stop a moment to pray, to pray for the success of the Allied invasion forces and the men in it."
